Section 3 of the guide: Your currency against the dirham: what to know before you transfer money to Dubai

A payment plan: converting over several years

Written by Usama Haj Yahia, founder of U810 Properties | Last updated: 18.11.2026

When buying off-plan, you pay in stages: part on signing, part during construction, and sometimes a large part on handover (see the guide to buying off-plan). Each payment is converted at the rate on the day you transfer it. In a payment plan spread over three or four years, you will have many conversions at different rates. In a plan where most of the amount is paid on handover, a large part of the cost in your currency will be set at the rate on handover day.
